Our Audience

Our attendees are the heart of our success—diverse, connected, and curious.

Educational conferences in California attract a diverse demographic of professionals deeply invested in student outcomes, technology integration, and educational equity. Attendees primarily include K-12 teachers, district administrators, school board members, technology specialists, and charter school leaders.

Our Audience

- 50 K+ annual event attendees
- Ages 25–60, urban professionals
- Active social media
- High interest in lifestyle, tech, and culture

Key Attendee Demographics and Roles:

Role Breakdown: Attendees are often a mix of classroom teachers, school site administrators, instructional technology coordinators, library media specialists, and district-level decision-makers.

Sector Representation: Participants come from public schools (charter and non-charter), county offices of education, and higher education institutions.

Focus Areas: Many attendees are specifically looking for tools related to student attendance improvement, special education, mental health, and equity-focused initiatives.

Diverse Representation: Given the demographics of California's public school workforce, there is an increasing presence of Latino and other educators of color.
